Businesses who register to list their details on the Children's Guide website may choose an exclusive page option for a fee. This option allows businesses to include up to 4 photographs or images and 4 downloadable documents or marketing materials as a part of their registration so they may promote their products or services to the Children's Guide community and public in general. The photos and documents will be included as a part of that business's listing for a period of 12 months after which renewal and new consent forms are required if applicable.

MMSE requires that a person in a position of authority certifies that they are allowed to supply the photos and documents as a part of their business advertising in Children's Guide. If, however, a photo or document contains an image of an individual (child or adult) who may be clearly identified, consent is required from that individual or a parent/guardian.

The photos and documents supplied are used for no other purpose but to appear as a part of that business's listing. MMSE does not distribute the photos or documents by any other medium including electronic or print. The Children's Guide website is available to all members of the public in Australia and overseas, and neither the listed businesses nor MMSE have any control over who views the photos or downloads the documents or how they record or use that information. Details provided below will not be included on any database or mailing list. Children's Guide has a privacy policy which may be viewed online at <http://www.childrensguide.com.au/AboutPrivacy.htm>.
